Art Unit: 2652

This application is a CON of 10/179,747, which is a CON of 08/952,350 and claims 1-2 are now pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Both claims 1 and 2 recite in the preamble "an optical disk drive apparatus for recording or reproducing an interchangeable optical disk," however, later in the claim refers to the disk as "said interchangeable optical disk." The preamble merely sets forth intended use language and does not positively recite that the optical disk is part of the claimed invention, therefore, the metes and bounds of the claim(s) is not readily ascertainable at this time.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

5. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yoshitoshi et al (US 4,731,777) in view of Hannah et al (US 5,829,318). In so far as the claims are definite and understood, (as per claim 1 and similarly for claim 2) Yoshitoshi et al discloses an optical disk player which readily loads/unloads an interchangeable optical disk, as shown in at least FIGs. 1 & 4, including a motor/rotor 3 to rotate the disc. Yoshitoshi et al, however, remains silent as to a balancer mounted rotatably with the optical disk.

Hannah et al discloses a motor/rotor as shown in FIGs. 1-2, for example, including: a balancer mounted rotatably with a rotor, and having a hollow ring member 34 containing therein a rotatable balancing member 40, and having a center axis positioned substantially concentrically with a rotational center axis of said motor and/or mounted in an integral fashion with the spindle shaft 32. Hannah et al discusses the need for balancing in a rotational device.

From this teaching, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have provided the favorable balancing characteristics as taught by Hannah et al into the motor device 3 of Yoshitoshi et al.

The motivation would have been: reducing any rotating unbalance and mechanical vibration of the motor/rotor would provide consistent input/output for the optical head, as would have been evident to a skilled artisan. With respect to the recitation that the "interchangeable optical disk is driven for rotation at a frequency higher than the primary resonance frequency of wobbling vibrations of said interchangeable optical disk loaded by the user" if not inherent to the balancing type apparatus of Hannah et al, Official Notice is taken that such a step would be notoriously old and well known in this art;(see Cameron et al USP 5,111,713 for example-col. 2, line 4), in order to properly balance the device, which would have been readily apparent to a skilled artisan.
